SATOLLI AT A BANQUET.

The tenth annual dinner of the Gridiron Club, given Saturday night at the Arlington Hotel, Washington, was one of the most successful ever given by that club.

Among the prominent guests were Archbishop Satolli, ex-Speaker Reed, Associate Justice Brewer, Major-General Schofield, the German, Hawaiian and Argentine ministers, William Edgar Nye, Senators Teller, Dubois and German, Representatives Hopkins, Woodcock, Baker, Caruth, Springer and Cannon, Judge Rufus B. Cowing, New York City; Thomas Nelson Page, and Assistant Postmaster-General Jones. Many novel and interesting features of entertainment were introduced. There are always features and features. The first of these characteristic incidents was the initiation.

The reconciliation of Cleveland and Hill was the subject seized upon by the initiation committee, for a scene in one act. Mr. Wayne, disguised as the venerable Capt. Bassett, the famous official of the Senate, announced Private Secretary Thurber, who, when he appeared, informed the company that it was due to his efforts alone that the two distinguished New Yorkers had been brought together. Close upon his heels came Secretary Lamont to dispute this claim in a loud and angry voice, and while the rivalry was still unsettled Cleveland and Hill themselves appeared. With much formality they shook hands and fell upon each other's necks, while a crowd of Clevelandites sang the "Cuckoo" song, and a gathering of Tammany gentlemen warbled "In the Bowery." On the outskirts was Mr. R. M. Lerner, uniformed as a policeman and swathed in a big canvas sash, labeled "Fort Cleveland." The reconciliation having been duly effected with a bright, crisp dialogue, the disguises were thrown aside and the principal characters were discovered.

The speeches were unusually bright and able, among them that of Mr. Satolli, who had his first opportunity since his residence in this country of addressing the press. Mr. Satolli's address was read by Dr. Rooker. He said in part:

"From the days of my arrival in America, down to the present moment, I have had every reason to feel pleased with the press of this country, to conceive the most exalted opinion of it, to appreciate its great importance, to nourish for its feelings of sincere and imperishable gratitude. If you desire to know my mission among you, you will find it expressed in the conditions enunciated for my favorable reception here by a well meaning, but misled, writer in the Forum two years ago. It is to help to lead the ignorant, to raise the fallen, to lead the guilty and penitent to the invisible and divine Saviour, who alone has power to forgive; to console the sorrowing, to promote righteousness, liberty, sympathy, the spirit of sympathy and the spirit of Christian brotherhood throughout the land. If you want to know what my mission is not, you have it in the words of the same writer in which he explains what he thinks it. He asserts that I am here to further the claims of the Pope to a kingdom in this world, a kingdom which embraces the whole world, all of the kingdoms of the world and the glory of them. In my own name and in that of Leo XII, who sent me, I repudiate any such purpose, and when it shall please the Pope to recall me, trusting in the kindness and rectitude of the public press, as Samuel of old, on laying down the crown of Israel, appealed to the assembled people to express dissatisfaction with his administration, so I will not hesitate to lay before the press of the country my labors and say, judge me."

MME. JONIAUX IN CONFUSION.—The third week of the trial of Madame Joniaux of Antwerp, for the murder of her three relatives, has shown no diminution in dramatic interest and public excitement. All thus social life of Belgium seems to focus on the gloomy Court room wherein this remarkable woman is fighting for her life. The week's evidence has borne on the financial difficulties of the prisoner, and the medical aspect of the case. Only once last week did Madame Joniaux lose her keen alertness in parrying lawyers. It was a painful episode when George Ablay, son of the prisoner's brother, who is alleged to have been her third victim, was called. The witness was painfully overcome by the situation, and his aunt was strangely affected. Her breast heaved, her head sank on her bosom, and her eyes evaded the witness chair. The witness on taking his post bowed to the jury, but never once glanced at his aunt.

An interrogation which related to loans of $4000 and $3600, of which the prisoner had $1800 and $800, was heard with difficulty, the witness uttering monosyllabic replies in low, distressed tones. Madame Joniaux's statement that her purchases of morphine before the death of her brother were for her own use was discredited by the testimony of a physician, who said she complained of insomnia the morning after her brother's death. He prescribed morphine powders, which would have had no effect had she been in the habit of using the drug. She told him afterward, however, that she slept after tak-

MEDICINAL.

Of all Fevers

the worst and most serious is Dengue or break-bone fever. Called "break-bone" because one's bones are not only racked with pain, but feel as if they were tightly held, as by a vice.

At times one feels that the pain is almost unbearable, and many are brought to Death's door by the terrible prostration which follows this grievous complaint.

All persons should know that

is the one medicine which relieves this extreme weakness and brings the patient back to sound health by its well-known medicinal qualities. From the first bottle the improvement is marked and permanent recovery is but a matter of a short period.

A curious incident of current opinion in society was given at an aristocratic dinner party the other evening, which was attended by 40 ladies and gentlemen. Votes were taken, with the result that the men were unanimously in favor of the acquittal of Madame Joniaux, while the women without exception declared her guilty. The ladies' gallery, in fact, is full of pitiless, relentless judges.
